Thank - I got a copy of the article from the Forest Service earlier this morning.

Aloha Randy,

See article in <https://www.indianz.com/News/2017/06/14/secretary-zinke-rejects-complaints-about-consult.asp>.

The following goes with what we were talking about yesterday regarding how we process comments:

“Whenever there's consultation -- meaningful consultation -- and the tribes give you their thought process ... it should be taken into consideration,” said Governor Mark Mitchell of the Pueblo of Tesuque, whose leaders support Bears Ears. “It should be written in black and white.”

But Indian Country wasn't the only one struggling to understand the words emanating from Washington, D.C. Lower-level officials at Interior weren't told in advance either, leaving them in the awkward position of having to explain their boss's decision during a previously-scheduled listening session despite having no information about it.
